A “Thank you!” is extended to all who support the Robinson Community Store through making purchases. Likewise, appreciation is given to those who serve shifts in the store, order items to stock, make shopping trips, pick up items that are ordered, bring items to the store for the “farmers’ market,” as well as to those who do the necessary bookkeeping “to keep the store going.” For several years, part of the items in the Robinson Community Store were purchased from the Thriftway store in Hiawatha at a small discount from retail price. While not the only source used to help stock the store, this was an important one for numerous items. When the store in Hiawatha closed, the RCBA board members explored ways to replace this important partnership. The owner of Horton Thriftway agreed to help by forming a similar partnership with the Robinson Community Store. This is an example of “local helping local.” Orders can be placed for either case items or individual items so that volunteers who are listed at Horton Thriftway as designated by the RCBA board may pick up the orders at Thriftway (as well as pull items from the shelves as needed). While a limited number of volunteers interact with the Horton Thriftway staff and management, there are ten volunteers regularly involved in tracking inventory, ordering, and obtaining the many different items available at the store. Robinson is one of a very few small rural communities that still have a grocery store. This is possible only through the support of the community members and volunteerism!
